Two views of "5 Vistas" 91 1/2" x 60 3/4" Multimedia on canvas 1998

With a dazzling display of new works, Panamaborn artist Rogelio Pretto reemerges into Miami's art scene after more than a decade. Understanding "the juncture where the self and the universe meet" has been the driving force behind Pretto's work from the very beginning. In this current exhibition at DANA Gallery, his purpose has found vibrant new expression. Magically colored otherworldly landscapes that stand out in bold three-dimensional relief play mesmerizing tricks on our perception of space and charm us with smiling wit.

The works are conceptualized modularly, allowing a painting to be viewed in a variety of positions by literally turning the painting on any of its sides. Most are composed of two or more panels, which can be repositioned to give new compositional meaning. The opening event promises a live demonstration by two mimes of the works' multipositional capabilities.

Don't miss this show; the visual rewards are 'out of this world'.
